BOON FOR RAILWAY MEN

Illinois Central Adopts a Pension System For Its Employees.

WILL GO INTO EFFECT ON JULY 1.

The Scheme Is Liberal In The Extreme—Company Starts With a Gift of $250,000—Rules as to Beneficiaries—How the Pensions Are Figured.

Illinois Central railroad employees retired for age or incapacity will be the beneficiaries of a comprehensive pension system which the road will put into effect July 1.

Each retired employee will receive a pension based on the average monthly salary he had been paid during the last ten years of his service and varying from 10 to 40 or even 50 per cent of that salary. The system applies to every officer and employee of the road from the president down to the humblest laborer, except the members of the law and surgical departments.

"We have been led to provide pensions," said President Stuyvesant Fish recently, "as an additional means of providing for our men and bringing them into close and friendly relations with the company. Since the rise of the value of the road stock above par we have found that the employees have practically stopped purchasing it, and after much deliberation we decided upon the present plan, the details of which have been carefully worked out."

"To start with, the company makes a cash gift of $250,000 to the pension fund. In addition it agrees to pay any amount needed for the pensions up to $100,000 each year. If the annual pension allowance run beyond this figure, then, and only then, the original $250,000 will be touched. If the $250,000 is exhausted the company reserves the privilege of altering the schedule of payments so that the burden shall not increase to too great size."

"As to the employees who get pensions, there are included in the first place all men over 70 years of age who have been ten years in the service of the road. Retirement at the age of 70 is made compulsory for all officers and employees. In the case of locomotive firemen, engineers, conductors, flagmen and brakemen, train baggage men, yardmasters, switchmen, bridge foremen, section foremen and supervisors, they may be retired at the age of 65, and if they have been ten years in service they will be pensioned. Officers and employees between the ages of 61 and 70 who have become incapacitated for any cause and who have been ten years in the service may be retired and pensioned."

"These provisions are liberal, for most other roads require a continuous service of 30 years before granting pensions, make the retirement age for incapacitated men from 65 to 69 years instead of 61 and do not let the train and track men retire before 70. "The amount of the pension is figured this way: The average monthly pay of the man for his ten years is found, and then he is allowed 1 per cent of the amount for every year he has been in the service of the road. If he has been ten years in service his pension is 10 per cent, and if he has been 40 years in service he gets a 40 per cent pension. For instance, the trackman gets the lowest pay, averaging $30 a month. Suppose a man has been 30 years in the service of the company—and it is fair to assume that most pensioned men will have been with us that long at least—his pension will be $9 a month, or $108 a year.

"A brakeman averages $60 a month, but if he was a good man he would be promoted long before retirement, and so would not get his pension on that salary basis. The same is true of firemen."

"The conductor averages $115 a month, which would make his pension after 30 years' service $34.50 a month, or $414 a year. The engineer, with an average pay of $125 a month, would get after 30 years' service $37.50 a month pension, or $450 a year. Master mechanics, averaging $90 a month, would get the same basis would get $18 a month pension, or $216 a year. Of course if men of these grades were retired after 40 years' service the pensions would be just 33 1/3 per cent greater than the figures given."

"The terms of the plan are liberal in another way. Of course continuous service is meant by the phrase 'length of service,' but where men have been gone on a leave of absence, suspension, dismissal followed by reinstatement within one year, or where temporarily laid off on account of reduction of the force when unattended by other employment, that is not considered a break in the continuity."

"Pensioned employees are permitted to engage in any other business they wish, although they cannot return to the service of the company. They are not permitted to assign away pensions."

"The road has now between 30,000 and 35,000 employees, half the size of the United States army, and all active workers. They must be kept to high efficiency. Conditions are more arduous every year. Wages are higher and stability of employment greater. To keep the force in the best condition we want a pension system, but we expect that from year to year the financial demands of the system will be heavier. We think that $100,000 a year will be ample, but we cannot tell yet, and we must even tell how many employees will be retired the first year. All is in the experimental stage."

The officials of the road who compose the pension board and will manage the scheme are C. A. Beck, W. J. Harahan, F. Krebs, William Renshaw, A. W. Sullivan, J. F. Wallace and Dr. J. B. Owens.

In our style of climate, with its sudden changes of temperature, rain, wind and sunshine often in the same day, it is no wonder that our children, friends and relatives are so frequently taken from us by neglected colds, half the deaths resulting directly from this cause. A bottle of Boschee's German Syrup kept about your home for immediate use will prevent serious sickness, a large doctor's bill, and perhaps death, by the use of three or four doses. YANKEE GOODS ABROAD.

What They Are Doing to Americanize England.

SOLD ALL OVER THE COUNTRY.

Rare Openings For Special Lines of Manufactured Products—American Footwear the Favorite For Ladies. Steady Demand For Our Furniture. Practical Hints to Exporters.

Newspapers both on your side of the Atlantic and on this frequently speak of the foreign trade of the United States as if it had almost reached its maximum capacity instead of regarding it as but only in its infancy, writes F. C. Chappell, the special London correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. I don't think the average American citizen is adequately aware of the extent of the trade done by the United States of America with Britain.

Indeed all around us here in England we have practical evidence of the favor with which American goods and many of our manufactures are regarded. Your boots and shoes are largely sold in the principal stores in London and elsewhere and are the favorite footwear for ladies on account of the great flexibility of the sole and the tasteful designs of the shape.

During the last ten years the sale of your boots and shoes in this country has risen from $23,943 to $1,050,000. There are today in London quite 50 firms representing American shoe manufacturers, and they state that they are quite satisfied with the trade done. The British operative earns on an average $8 or $6 a week, while I believe the American maker receives about $12 to $15. But yet a dozen pairs of shoes can be produced cheaper in the United States of America than in England.

American furniture suitable for the homes of workmen and the better class of tradespeople is in steady demand all over the United Kingdom. Last year you sent us about $227,000 worth of these goods, and orders could be easily trebled if your makers cared to pay more attention to British tastes, local wants and prompt shipment. The Canadians have cut into this trade a good deal lately. They send very smart travelers all over this country who take small orders, make up to any design and generally do what is wanted. These travelers always carry a full line of samples. Your top roll desks and office furniture hold the market here and are to be found in all large offices, warehouses, institutions, etc. Lord Roberts directly he went to the war office gave instructions to have his private room fitted with an American desk in place of the old fashioned table used by his predecessor in office. Probably this will lead to hundreds more of these desks being used at the war office. Until recently any one wanting to have his books polished in the streets had to place his foot on a little boxlike apparatus, standing while the boy polished away for all he was worth. Now your commodious chairs have been substituted, while the bulk of the barbers' chairs used are from the United States of America.

The clock in American made watches and clocks continues as brisk as ever and has quite killed one part of the British home trade. It is a very significant fact that in Switzerland, the home of the watch industry, American watches sell in direct competition with the Swiss product and that, too, within a few miles of the largest manufacturing in that country.

There is an enormous demand in Britain and indeed throughout Europe generally for all kinds of practical domestic appliances intended to minimize or do away with domestic service, which is just as difficult to secure in the old world as it is in the new. We have had handy novelties introduced here from your side in brooms and such things, all of which sell widely. Little hardware novelties, such as locks, etc., sell well. Stair ceilings, wooden cornices, etc., are in demand and will repay the trouble of any exporter to open up the market.

There is a steadily increasing sale all over Europe of American farm implements and agricultural machinery. European buyers take quite one-half of the total sent abroad from the United States of America. Sales have not been so brisk here in England during the past year, but still we have purchased more such implements than in 1890 and preceding years. I think your exporters should specially cultivate the French and German markets; also watch the development of Turkey and Egypt. The latter country is a capital future market for windmills and all kinds of irrigating plants. The sultan of Turkey has just placed farm implements on the free list of imports. Somehow or other the Germans cannot produce implements like your own, and they have consequently to buy larger quantities from you every year. The trade is largely increasing. Unluckily, American implements have to pay the maximum tariff in France, but in spite even of that serious drawback your sales there are increasing every year.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Pearl Fisher.

Tom was going to be a sailor, and Jenny came down stairs to see him off. "Here is a lucky bone for you, Tom," she said. "I found it on the beach when I was at the seashore, and it will keep you safe from shipwreck."

Tom thanked her and put the lucky bone in his pocket. Then he got into his boat and rowed away across the broad harbor floor.

True, he went rather hard over the carpet, for it was a clothes basket, and the tongs did not make very good oars, but he got on pretty well till he came to the grand piano.

"Here is the harbor," he said. "I'll go in here to get pearls, Jenny. Only I must beware of the Leg rocks!"

"Yes, do beware," said Jenny. "And be sure to bring me home some pearls."

Tom promised and then began the dangerous entrance into Piano harbor. He avoided the Leg rocks very skillfully, but in standing up to steer round them he struck his head pretty sharply against the top of the harbor.

"Oh," said Jenny, "if you hadn't had the lucky bone you might have hurt yourself."

"Yes," said Tom, and he rubbed his head hard and winked several times. "Are you getting many pearls, Tommy?" asked Jenny.

Tom felt in his pockets, but there was nothing in them, for a wonder, save a pencil, some crumbs and the lucky bone.

"Pretty well," he said. "Very likely I could get a great many more if I staid longer, but I think I'd better come home now, for the water is full of sharks!"

"Oh, do come back!" cried Jenny, jumping up and down on the bank. "Oh, Tom, what would you do if a shark jumped into the boat?"

"Stick an oar down his throat, of course," replied Tom promptly.

Here, while keeping a sharp lookout for sharks, the bold pearl fisher ran into the Leg rocks and was almost capsized, but he handled the boat with great skill and finally managed to push her off. After some minutes of hard pulling, when his wife stood speechless, with clasped hands, he reached the shore.

Jenny gloved with pride in her hero. "Oh, Tom, I am so glad you have come back safe!" she cried. "Oh, how brave you are! I am sure I saw those dreadful sharks after you! But where are the pearls?"

"Here," said Tom, and he handed her the lucky bone.

"They are beautiful pearls!" she said. "If sharks have an imperial crown made out of them and a necklace and teeth. I always thought 'teeth like pearls' sounded lovely, you know. I say, Tom, wasn't it good that I gave you the lucky bone? If I hadn't, you couldn't have brought me any pearls or only string and pencil ones."

"So I couldn't," said Tom. "And you might really have hurt your head," said Jenny.

"So I might," said Tom, and he rubbed his head, where, already, there was a bump as large as an egg.—Laura E. Richards in Youth's Companion.

A Lesson For the Prince. One of the many stories told in Germany about the crown prince's childhood has almost become a household word with his future subjects, so frequently has it been told in nurseries. Nothing afforded the young prince when a child of 6 or 7 greater pleasure than to watch the sentries salute as he passed in or out of the castle at Potsdam, and the old soldiers were kept at it from morning till night. This delight was equalled only by his aversion to water, and the poor woman who was charged with his toilet averred that he lay awake nights devising a means to escape the cold morning bath. One day the child rushed in upon the emperor and empress as they sat at breakfast with a fierce complaint against the sentry who neglected to salute him as usual that morning. The emperor drew his son close to him, examined him curiously and then replied, "I don't wonder, my son, the poor sentry did not recognize the crown prince in this dirty faced little boy, so I cannot have him salute him." The prince ever refused to have his face washed.

Game of Lame Goose. One of the players, the lame goose, retired to a space marked off as den. The others tease him to come out, saying, "Lame goose, lame goose, can't catch anybody." Lame goose runs out, but can take only three steps, when he must hop on one foot, trying to tag the others while hopping. A lame tagged lame goose goes to the den. Lame goose puts his foot down while outside the den after the first three steps, the others drive him back. The player last tagged wins the game and becomes the first lame goose of the next game. Care should be taken that the hopping is not always done on the same foot.

TUNNELING A MOUNTAIN.

Account of a Stupendous Engineering Feat In The West.

The wonderful achievement of tunneling a big mountain at Sherman, Wyo., by the Union Pacific in order to reduce the grade and shorten the track has been accomplished, and on May 1 regular service was commenced on the new line from Buford to Tie Siding, which becomes part of the main line of "the overland route."

The contract for this work was awarded about a year ago, and its completion is reckoned one of the most astonishing feats of railroad engineering yet accomplished. The general public has no idea of the gigantic fills and marvelous tunneling through the Rockies in connection with this work.

The Sherman tunnel, forming a very important part of the project, is situated between Dale Creek and Tie Siding, nearly half a mile long. In the mountain it pierces the hardest of granite formation, one of the hardest of granite rocks, from which comes Sherman gravel, so extensively used on the Union Pacific for ballast.

Standing conspicuously out in this great engineering work are two fills. Lone Tree fill and Dale Creek fill. The embankment at the last named fill is 145 feet in the highest place, 900 feet long, 40 feet wide at the top, 115 feet at the bottom. The Lone Tree fill is 130 feet high at the highest point. These two fills involved the handling of 500,000 cubic yards of earth and stone.

Two other embankments adjacent required the moving of 250,000 yards, so that this particular part of the work, all within a distance of a mile, necessitated the moving of more than 750,000 cubic yards of earth and rock. Through the embankments pass large concrete and iron culverts, to provide for the drainage of the large area obtaining on Dale creek. The new tunnel is so well constructed that with freedom from density of air one may see clearly with the naked eye from one end of the tunnel to the other.

The saving in motive power to the Union Pacific by the construction of the new line will be immense, and is evidenced by the fact that the maximum grade per mile is reduced from 97.08 per cent to 43.3 per cent between Buford and Laramie alone. The Union Pacific will now be able to make faster time to all western points and haul heavier loads than before.

At the local option election in Rowan county Saturday the temperance people carried every precinct in the county.

Mrs. McKinley's condition is reported to be as good as could be expected. A slow improvement is looked for.

EVERY one acknowledges it to be a fact that Hinton always keeps a stock of furniture that cannot be excelled in Central Kentucky. If you are thinking of buying and have not examined his stock you are doing yourself an injustice.

THE BOURBON NEWS paid the ten dollars in gold it promised to the person who made the best guess on the result of the primary last Saturday, to Mr. Elmer Foote. The "Don't Knock" Order has been organized in the East, says the Lexington Democrat. It is the successor to the "Knocking down" fame, but is unlike that graver crowd. The pan-pose are set forth as follows:

Section 1. To overcome in its members the deplorable habit of speaking ill of their fellows—otherwise known as "knocking"—and by precept and example trying to induce others to do the same.
Sec. 2. To better the social and moral condition of mankind by a true devotion to its members to the cause of charity in its broadest sense.
Sec. 3. To keep the Golden Rule ever in the minds of its members.
Sec. 4. To bind its members together in a social and fraternal manner.
The evil results of "knocking," which is a colloquial word signifying "to back bite," "to speak ill of," etc., was evidently the incentive that led to the founding of the order.

It is the purpose of the society to repress the reprehensible habit of "roasting" people, talking behind their backs. As yet no provision has been made for the admission of women members. This will be attended to, however, and it is believed that organizations will spring up in the country villages where the venomous tongue of the gossip is attended in so many cases with such dire results.

Mr. W. J. Baxter, of North Brook, N. C., says he suffered with piles for fifteen years. He tried many remedies with no results until he used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and that quickly cured him.—W. T. Brooks.

TEA TABLE TALK

The other afternoon I called on Mrs. Malleson and found a small crowd round the tea table and in the bay of the window, through the crowd, caught a glimpse of Miss Della in serious conversation with Winthrop.

Presently my hostess handed me a cup of tea. "Carry this to Mrs. Delapoor," said she, "and amuse her. She looks tired."

I purposely blundered and carried the tea to Miss Della.

"Plenty of cream?" she asked. "A great plenty."

"By the way, Winthrop," I said, "Mrs. Malleson was asking for you. I think when I left her."

Winthrop made a little complimentary complaint to Miss Della and turned to seek his hostess and possibly, I thought, with a grin, to be offered a convenient sacrifice to Mrs. Delapoor.

"Why have you driven away my cavalier?"

"Two are company," said she. "But you were the last comer," said I.

"Then it would be most unfair," said I, with emphasis, "to expect me to be the first to go, besides," I continued, "you both looked so serious that I feared for his reputation."

"His reputation?" she queried. "You do not appreciate his capacity for foolishness," I replied, "and there could be absolutely no excuse for him."

"That," said Miss Della, "sounds very unlike a compliment."

"I will make it more obvious. A danger that is conspicuous is easily avoided, and the foolishness that can ignore a warning in this case so patent is beyond reproach."

"See-a," with a somewhat puzzled look, "I think I like that."

"Beauty," I continued, "is the solace of a temperance, and Winthrop has a temperament that needs a beautiful solace."

Miss Della frowned a little smile in a sip of cream tea, then she looked at me stily, and, "That isn't a bit like your temperament?" she said interrogatively.

"No," I admitted, "but I have passed from the golden age into the Gothic."

"How quaint!" she laughed. "A sure sign of the middle ages," I sighed.

"A most romantic period," with a little smile suggesting a home thrust.

"Nevertheless the nineteenth century is not quite starved of romance nor robbed of beauty," I said, parrying the point.

Miss Della appeared not to notice. The outlook had appropriated her attention.

"Is it not a charming view?" she questioned.

"It is," said I, "a delightful background."

"Oh!" exclaimed she, turning a not displeased glance upon me. "You are!" And she stopped as suddenly as the outburst.

"I am what I am. What am I? Confess!" I demanded.

"No," she said decidedly. "Confession is for men; women explain."

"Then they do not explain themselves clearly, since they remain inexplicable."

"Or they explain themselves away," she laughed.

"Then I ask no explanation," I cried. Miss Della made a mocking inclination and put down the empty cup; then she snuggled back into the cushions.

Presently Winthrop crossed the stage administering knowledge to Miss Burdette.

"There goes the knight errant," said I. "Shall I bring him captive to your feet?"

Miss Della laughed. "He is awfully clever," she always said. "He always succeeds in discovering my ignorance to me, but," she added provokingly, "he is nice."

"The wisdom of the wisest of the wise," I quoted, ignoring the insinuation. Miss Della smiled. "And the ignorance of the most ignorant is but the faintest echo of God's wisdom."

"But," interrupted Miss Della reflectively, "one forgets a good deal one knows."

"And remembers a good deal one never knew," I added. "I am convinced of that. I have knowledge packed behind this ossa frontalis," tapping my forehead solemnly, "than I ever crammed there."

"Yes," she said; "that is what I feel." "Providence sets in our hearts the knowledge we need," said I, "and man teaches us that which we should not require."

Miss Della was growing serious. This would never do.

"Seriousness," I began, to exercise the boy, "is the perquisite of the earnest, and limited enthusiasm is the hall mark of the bore."

"Well, you should never become a bore," laughing deliciously.

"That depends upon my companion," I replied.

"You always shirk responsibilities," said she.

"No," I avowed them, said I. "Boredom is my antidote for undesirable companionship."

Miss Della jumped up. "There is mamma beckoning to me. I must go." "I will seek a solace," I said.

"A beautiful solace?" queried she artlessly.

"Mrs. Delapoor," Miss Della smiled. "How about the tea?"

"I will explain it away," I answered. "And the delay?" she continued.

"I will tell her it was dangerous."

"Will that be the truth?" she asked, with a pretty laugh.

"It will be sufficiently near it," said I. Ladies' Pictorial.

The Utilization of Noise. Mrs. Nibber—Doesn't that man in the next pew roar awfully when he sings?

Mr. Nibber—Yes; I'm going to speak to an usher about it and have him put in the choir.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Brought Down the House. On one occasion, when Arthur Roberts, the English actor, was performing the part of Captain Crosswhite in the burlesque of "Black Eyed Susan" at Glasgow, he converted an awkward contretemps into a hit. In one of the scenes Crosswhite enters supposed to be inebriated and staggers about the stage. In doing so Mr. Roberts accidentally came in contact with the scenery of the inn, bringing the whole set down. The curtain had to be lowered, and the vivacious comedian came to the front and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, you see when we come to Glasgow we always bring down the house."

NOT BURIED AT SEA.

The Humane French Boatman and the Dead Englishman.

A long expected French lugger was seen making for the roadstead, and the Lowestoft free traders were on the alert, anxiously seeking an opportunity for an encounter with her crew.

While they waited for a lapse of vigilance on the part of the excisemen, a boat was lowered from the lugger and rowed toward the shore. A curious crowd of beach men and excisemen assembled to meet her, and as she came in on the crest of a roller it was observed that she contained a coffin.

The French boatman had a mournful tale to tell. On board the lugger had been an Englishman suffering from an illness which soon proved fatal. In his last moments of consciousness he had begged the captain to bury him at sea, but to keep his body until a resting place could be found for it under the green turf of a churchyard in his native land. Sympathy with his sad fate and the knowledge that the lugger was not far from the English coast had induced the captain to consent, and now he had sent the body ashore for burial. In spite of his broken English, the Frenchman's spokesman told his tale well.

Both excisemen and beach men—especially the latter—loudly expressed their admiration of the captain's conduct. A person was summoned, and in a little while a mournful procession made its way from the beach to the churchyard. Even the chief officer of the excisemen was present and is said to have shed tears.

That night the local "resurrectionists" were busy, and at dawn the churchyard contained a desecrated grave. A little way inland, however, in the midst of the marshes, a smugglers' store received the addition of a coffin filled with silks and lace—"Highways and Byways in East Anglia," W. A. Dutt.

His Objection. "The great actor objected to their taking his name from the drama programme and placing it on the list of burned cork stars."

"I wonder why?" "He said he didn't want to be black-listed."—Chicago News.

Half Rates to Kansas City.

Via Queen & Crescent Route, account Shriners Meeting, June 11th-14th, 1901. Rate, one fare the round trip, (plus $2 liberal limits. Ask ticket agent for particulars. W. C. RINEHARTSON, G. P. A. (td).

MESSRS. JOHN B. KENNEDY and Horace Miller are owners of extensive plots of land in Texas adjoining the Beaumont oil gushers. Several capitalists have tried to purchase their property, and yesterday both these gentlemen left for Texas to investigate the value of their land.

AMONG the graduates at Central University we find the names of the following Lexington boys: R. D. Spruitt and George Mansfield, of Little Rock; J. C. Kenney, of Glen Kenner, and Next L. Shoppshire, of Annetzville, the latter graduating from the Law Department Judge Wm. Chenault, Dean of the Law School, died at Colorado Springs, Col., on Monday.

MESSRS. ROBERT HUNT and Frank Daugherty, of this city, who were among the forty-five graduates of the Kentucky State College, at Lexington, have each secured fine positions. Mr. Hunt goes with the Cincinnati Southern Railway Company and will be connected with the shops at Ludlow. Mr. Daugherty has secured a position with the Browning Engineering Company at Cleveland, O. Mr. Hunt is a beneficiary of the Garth fund.

The Big Carnival.

The time is rapidly approaching for the big carnival of Garth Lodge, A. O. U. W., and the only thing which seems to be bothering the committee having the matter in charge is whether Paris will be large enough to accommodate the large crowd which will be in town on that day. From all directions, as far as Covington, Maysville, Richmond, Frankfort and even Louisville, comes reports of large crowds coming on that day.

THE NEWS is requested to ask every body to decorate as lavishly as possible. It is the first impression of the town which leaves the most lasting memories in the minds of the visitors, and nothing will tend to make them have a good impression of the town than to have it nicely decorated.

The entertainment at the Opera House that night will be one of the best performances ever seen in that building. There is hardly a doubt but that the house will be crowded, and it behooves every one to secure their seats in advance at Brooks' drug store on Monday morning when the seats go on sale. The following is a brief outline of the performance: Mr. J. Ray McCann will give a couple of character sketches. These will be entirely new to anything Mr. McCann has heretofore done in Paris, and will be alone worth a trip to the Opera House. R. S. Porter has written and arranged a negro sketch entitled "The Doctor's Office Boy," in which himself and Mr. George Brown, assisted by others, will appear. Mr. Porter has also arranged a pantomime sketch entitled "The Pickaninies Frolic," in which seven boys and one girl will appear. Miss Esther Margelen's violin pupils will render several selections. The "Elite Mandolin Quartette" have kindly volunteered their services and as they are great favorites will be heartily received. The celebrated "Twin Brothers Quartette" will also appear. These cute little tots are a big hit and will be well worth the price of admission. What will in all probability be the hit of the evening will be the engagement of the celebrated Quartette, of Lexington, who will render a program of the popular melodies. Living pictures and the funny "Lobsterscope" will wind up the performance.

A Supposed Child Murderer.

On Saturday night about 12 o'clock, Dr. Hickman, color-d, of this city, was called to attend the case of child birth in Cotton town. Upon his arrival at the house the child had been born about an hour, and after attending to the wants of the mother and fending the child to be in a healthy condition, the doctor left, promising to be back again the next day. On his calling the next morning he was told by the mother, Margaret Swango, that the child had died the night previous and had been buried on the bank of the creek by the father, Joe Claxton. The circumstances were so suspicious that Dr. Hickman reported the matter to the police and Claxton was arrested by Officer Bishop and lodged in jail. Yesterday morning Coroner Thomas summoned a jury, and after an autopsy had been held on the body of the infant by Coroner's physician Wallingford, the jury returned a verdict that the infant came to its death from natural causes, and Claxton was released from custody.

The Sewer a Certainty.

The people of Paris can congratulate themselves on the fact that the building of a sewer plant in the city is a positive certainty. The News yesterday interviewed Mr. D. C. Parish, chairman of the sewer committee, and was informed by him that the engineer had been practically decided upon, and that there was little doubt but that work upon the sewer system commenced within perhaps the next month. Ultimately the system will embrace the entire city, but the first work done will be from the bend of Main street to the Windsor Hotel, and on Pleasant and High streets. The Council committee having the matter in charge are determined to have a first class system built. The original plan will cost in the neighborhood of twenty-five thousand dollars, and they are determined to insure a plant which will be perfect and which will insure the city of being free from any litigation in the future.

Prof Yerkes To Leave.

It will be a source of regret to our people to learn that Prof. W. L. Yerkes has accepted a position as U. S. Bank Examiner and will permanently close his work as teacher in this city. There are a large number of our most prominent young men who owe their high standing in this community and their educational attainments to the patience and wisdom of this excellent instructor. Mr. Yerkes has a host of very warm friends in Paris who will wish for him success in his new position.

The school will be continued by a competent teacher, and in all probability will be kept up to the same high standard maintained by Prof. Yerkes.

Accident.

While driving through the streets at Richmond on Wednesday morning, a horse driven by Hon. E. M. Dickson, of this city, became frightened and kicked the dashboard a number of times. In trying to control the animal a rein broke and the buggy was upset, throwing Mr. Dickson out and cutting a deep gash in his head. While painful, the wound is not serious.

To Paris Merchants

Are you going to assist the A. O. U. W. lodge at Paris to mark the 12th of June, a memorable day in the history of the town? The one way you can assist is to decorate your houses. S. E. Borani is chairman of the Committee on Decorations, and has a very large stock of decorations of every kind which he is selling at a small margin over cost. Do not put off until the last moment, but go at once before the stock is picked over.

The Harrison Brothers' Minstrel's gave two very bun performances to small crowds here yesterday. The best part of the show was the street parade which in a delectable costume which would have justified the police in arresting them for indecent exposure of person.

Between Palmouth and Cynthia the engine of the train became disabled, and a wait of two hours resulted. The new three cent piece to be issued by the government has been styled the "doughnut coin" by reason of the fact that the piece is to have a hole in the center. This innovation in the coinage of Uncle Sam's money was deemed necessary from the fact that the new coin is the exact size and of the same material as the present five cent piece.

The Confederate Soldier's Home, at Atlanta, Ga., was formally opened Monday. Sixty veterans were admitted.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the election of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in. Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting.
